

“Your talent in innovation” - February 28th.

We believe innovation is all about people creating value through the implementation of new ideas.

Reflection with action will be at the core of today's workshop.

We use Foursight as an instrument to discover personal preferences related to innovation. Further we investigate how creative tension can benefit from this diversity in a team. To become a creative powerhouse.

From team level we move up to organisational level to determine key elements for an innovative climate. The many examples given can provide inspiration for your own organisation.

Trough different exercises we will also focus on essential skills for managing innovations/innovative teams.

Two weeks after the workshop a skype or audioconference will be scheduled to discuss knowledge gained, intentions for implementation and any questions you may have.

Testimonies

“This workshop about innovation has a surprising approach E.g. we looked at the skill of ‘managing chaos’ through words, images and expression We soon came close to the core of our own functioning (?). Although I am not usually one to speak up I felt soon at ease in this new group of people and learned that I do have the guts. Innovation is much more within reach than I expected. You get insight in your own skills and your personal learning curve. A must !”

“A very interactive and well organised workshop. We learned about the different types of people needed in order to successfully realize innovative projects. In another part we learned through actual business cases how important an innovative climate is. Inspiring and fascinating trainer !”
